WE ARE...

farmers, teachers, parents, clergy, small business owners, students and more. We live in rural, urban and suburban communities. We believe that we all have a responsibility to be good stewards – to care for land, water and other natural resources and protect them now and for future generations.

We do this work with passion.

WE BELIEVE...

THE LAND can produce an abundance of food if we work with nature not against it.
FARMERS should earn a decent living from the food they grow for us all.
CITIZENS should have a say in the future of their communities.
CHILDREN deserve safe drinking water, clean air, and healthful food.

We believe in this vision for the future, because we are watching it unfold now...

WE SEE streams that run cleaner after passing through diversified farms, and bobolinks and meadowlarks return as field crops become grassland pastures.

WE HEAR rural communities speaking out to save their water, air and land from abuse by factory farms.

WE TASTE the freshness of food grown by local family farmers.

WE FEEL the power of grassroots organizing that creates change -- toward stewardship and justice.

WE KNOW new farmers who are excited about their future on the land.

*"The Land Stewardship Project connects me with conscientious farmers, reflective researchers and enthusiastic policy people. The energy to do what is right makes me more aware of my responsibility to be informed and to act on my connections."
 – Sister Kathleen Storms, LSP member*
